Primary Exempt Purpose

The Resilient Activist works to ensure a healthy, diverse, and regenerative environment for generations to come. Our approach cultivates resilience for environmental stressors through community support, enhanced personal well-being, and the promotion of vital ecological health. Guided by the principle that empowered environmentalists are essential for effective earth stewardship, we address the systemic challenges of global instability, disconnection from nature, and climate change that can lead to overwhelm and disengagement. Participants in our programs learn crucial self-management techniques, boundary establishment, the importance of joy, and personalized activism styles that foster long-term engagement and prevent burnout. In 2024, The Resilient Activist offered 65 events, workshops, and speakers' bureau programs, serving 1,582 individuals. The organization gratefully acknowledges the in-kind contributions of 16 professionals who volunteered 284.25 hours, valued at $25,582.50.

about climate change. This reflects the psychological dimensions of the climate crisis and the urgent need to address them. In response, Climate Café gatherings are a valuable tool in providing resilience and emotional support. The Resilient Activist's (TRA) Climate Cafés provide a welcoming and safe space for individuals to process emotional responses to the climate crisis. Led by a multidisciplinary team including climate-aware therapists, climate scientists, and mindfulness professionals, our gatherings offer a confidential and respectful space to foster emotional resilience and community support as we face the climate crisis. Other organizations' Climate Café initiatives are one-offs or private events. Only TRA has offered monthly virtual Cafés for 600+ participants from around the globe since March 2022. In 2024, we hosted twelve virtual events, totaling 16.5 hours with 252 participants. In addition, participant feedback reflects a desire for local, in-person gatherings to meet others in their communities who are concerned about climate change. In response, we have developed a collaboration with the American Library Association (ALA) and its Sustainability Roundtable, with strong interest from 100+ librarians across the US. In 2024 and 2025, TRA is developing a novel, scalable, and turnkey solution: an online library of expertly curated Café topics and comprehensive facilitation guides tailored for librarians. Utilizing libraries as trusted and accessible community hubs in neighborhoods across the US, this subscription model democratizes access to professionally developed emotional resilience support, addressing growing eco-anxiety and grief. TRA's established virtual program success, our knowledgeable team, and our strategic partnership with the ALA/Sustainability Roundtable ensure program quality, relevance, and national reach, distinguishing it from other Climate Café efforts. In-kind donations from our professional team for planning, development, and presentations totaled $24,940 in 2024.

Missouri River Bird Observatory. These impactful events engaged a diverse cohort of environmental and social justice advocates from nonprofit and for-profit organizations, universities, governmental sustainability leaders at various levels, and grassroots initiatives. Recognizing the significant challenges of burnout, frustration, and grief within this community due to escalating greenhouse gas levels and increasing extreme weather events, TRA's program directly addresses these critical needs. Two experienced activist facilitators from The Resilient Activist conducted a focused 1-hour program for 42 participants and an in-depth 6-hour retreat for 18 participants. These sessions were strategically designed to assist attendees in refocusing their efforts, reframing their perspectives, and renewing their commitment to activism, thereby mitigating feelings of overwhelm and exhaustion. The Resilient Activist offers this customized workshop to organizations, providing participants with practical tools for self-care, self-reflection, and reimagining strategies. This empowers individuals to identify, value, and cultivate sources of joy and energy while acknowledging and navigating sources of stress or difficulty. The development and delivery of these workshops represent an in-kind contribution valued at $3,060.
